COMMUNITY

Where The Buses Go by Michele Turner

Twenty-one years ago, five towns in Southern Berkshire (Alford, Egremont, Monterey, New Marlborough, and Sheffield) began busing 7-12 students to Mount Everett Regional School. Since that time, our district buses have traveled probably in excess of 4 million miles. Most students are not enthusiastic about riding buses, but at least they have some creditable scenery to view on the way to school and coming back home.

In order to get some shots of buses and community, I got up early one October morning and drove to school. I was driving down Route 23 in South Egremont, and there it was . . . a bus! I pulled over and jumped out of the car. Using a Nikon, I managed to get the camera settings and the picture just in time; Smiley's Pond made a beautiful upside-down frame, and the ducks made the picture really complete. Mike Lewis took the picture of a bus going up Cooper Hill in Sheffield (bottom left), and I got the shot of a group of kids getting on the bus in the village of South Egremont (bottom middle). On that occasion, after I turned around, I saw another bus going by The Olde Mill (bottom right).

I was pulled over by the library in Egremont getting a few pictures when I saw a bus coming. I got a shot of it down the road, then I had to wait to see where it was going. It came at me! I ran down the road in front of the bus in order to slow it down. I stopped, turned, and got another shot. Then I waited for the kids to get on the bus and got another shot. Finally I stepped out of the way and allowed the bus to go by and caught one last shot (see pictures far left, page 6). Some kids get taken through Alford Center; I got the shot of Alford Center school right at dusk (page 6, top right). In New Marlborough there are a lot of hills; up this one you can follow a path to a church (page 6, upper middle). The sun was hanging low in the sky in Ashley Falls when the picture of two houses was taken (lower middle); if you look close you might be able to see a girl on a bicycle. A fisherman at Lake Garfield in Monterey ignored me as I took his picture (bottom). The golf course at Jug End was very quiet when I went by one Friday afternoon (page 7, top left). Where do buses go during off hours? This one went to Boardman's house on County Road in Sheffield (top right). Finally the buses take us right to the sidewalks (even on the first day of snow of) Mount Everett.

Bus Arrival And Beyond

After the buses arrive, they have to wait until 8:20 before letting students off. The stampede that follows is something to behold; it challenges the credibility of kids who say they don't want to go to school.

ABOVE: This picture was taken one morning in November. The kids sort of cross paths as they leave the buses. Bigger students head toward the high school wing at right, and younger kids go in the front entrance by the stack. The tire tracks in the lawn were made by a vehicle that had to drive around the building on legitimate business, but the administration was at this time investigating other tire tracks on the lawn made by someone out for kicks or revenge. RIGHT: It was a beautiful autumn day in October, and the leaves in the sun were a bright gold. We got three seventh grade girls to stand in the leaves and people a picture of the school. It was a good deal, we got a good picture and they got out of class for a little while. The girls: Maryann Sullivan, Tami Stetson, Susan Watson.

Work That Never Ends

Mrs. Rokos

Mrs. Robinson

Mrs. Ullrich

Mrs. Novak

Mrs. Koneazny

Mrs. Arzt

When nine hundred people are using a building, you know some people have some work to do. In fact, some people have so much work to do that they can never catch up. Food services, maintenance, repair, cleaning, paper work, and health services keep those people more than busy.

Directing And Controlling At Mt. Everett

Chamberland, has implemented a new student handbook and a new faculty manual which have turned out to be very effective and successful. NOT PICTURED: Mr. David Pottle, formerly a guidance counselor, now directs career and occupational education.

CURRICULUM AND THINGS TO DO

District-Wide Goals Being Implemented

Curriculum is presently being developed at every level and in every academic department in accordance with district-wide goals. Implementation of the goals is already being reflected in many learning situations and activities inside classrooms and out. The objective, in general, is to make all learning at Mount Everett interesting, rewarding, and relevant.

Extracurricula activities are still drawing a good number of students (especially the more traditional among them — such as band, prom, play, and yearbook), but the open campus arrangement and the local availability of student jobs take many would-be participants away.

ABOVE: The new addition to the Home Economics department is just like being at home. You can relax with your feet up while you work on your project. LOWER RIGHT: Jay Cassidy decided he needed a couple sheets of notes that he had torn up; Kevin Granger helped with Scotch tape. FAR RIGHT-TOP: Geometry with Mr. Dunham is the kind of class that really makes you ask questions. Nicole Tolvo and Paula Mielke are working together and are in need of a little assistance. MIDDLE: English Literature with Mr. Hayward is more convenient in a circle. We don't have to twist and turn to watch and listen to the person behind us. BOTTOM: The Photojournalism Class and the Yearbook staff went on a field trip to Technicolor Studios in Springfield. We were fascinated watching their artists "touch up" photos.

(THINGS TO DO)

BELOW: We spent a lot of time watching the drying process of reprints at the Technicolor Studio. We were amazed at how fast the photos moved over the drying drum. We saw the photos go on wet and come out dry. RIGHT: After her trip to Europe, Maria Sierau had a lot of catching up to do — even in typing.

(THINGS TO DO)

BELOW: The freshman science class made candles by hand-dipping them. The shapes they came up with were quite extraordinary. This team was made up of Charles Pickert, Richard Curtiss, Paul Zigmand, Warren Thomson. BELOW LEFT: English I students did some inductive reasoning in connection with reading Never Cry Wolf. Seated are Carl Seiger, Frank Reeves, Brian Shaw, Dale Warner, and Lisa Vorck; standing are Tony Sadara, Donald Smith, Remo Pizzichemi, Peter Weinstein, and David Wright.

A Bomb Scare On A Cold Fall Day?

By Michele Turner

What do you do when you guessed it was only a fire drill, but it turned out to be a bomb scare on an unreasonably cold day? I was lucky to get a camera that day to catch the different methods of keeping warm. I guess the main idea for people was to make use of what they had. Wherever I looked I saw cold people. Only a few were fortunate enough to have jackets. My hands were so cold I had a hard time pushing the plunger of the camera.

The fire trucks (picture left top) came to check the building out. The front got to watch what was going on. Most everyone's arms were wrapped tight around their bodies. Mr. Porro-vechio (left middle) made use of his overalls to cover his bare arms. Keeping your sense of humor always helps in this kind of situation. John Paterson, Keith Hyatt, Jim Cosgriff, Mike Leining, Rick Du Vall, and Bill Pekrul (left bottom) gathered together hoping the trees would help shield the wind. Pockets are always handy when gloves are not available. John Berkel (center) made use of the fallen leaves as a blanket of protection. He really seemed to be quite comfortable. Friends are always nice to have around in a time of need. Huddles of students. (picture far right) like these two, could be seen all over the school grounds. If we wanted to catch pneumonia, there are better ways than a bomb scare to do it.

(THINGS TO DO)

Girls Take Most Class Officer Roles in 1975-76

SENIOR officers are people who really know what they are doing. They have the experience and maturity to assume responsibility. Early last year, when someone painted "Spiret of '76" all over the building, senior officers set the clean-up in motion. By November, senior meetings were being devoted to graduation. In December, the officers directed a successful Dec. 20 dance. These officers get things done. (Above) Tina Gulotta — secretary. Pat Win-terbottom — president, Sandy Briggs — treasurer, Bill Pekrul — vice-president. Advisers: Mr. Davis and Mr. Herlihy.

JUNIORS had an energetic election last spring (at the end of their sophomore year) that made Pam Germain president, Nadine Griffin vice-president, Janet Wilkinson secretary, and Christine Smith treasurer. Among their responsibilities were the Christmas Tea and 1976 Prom. Advisers: Mrs. Brolli, Mrs. Lay.

SOPHOMORES are capably led by Tamar Petersen, president; Laurie Johnson, vice-president; Victoria Bourque, treasurer; and Nicole Tolvo, secretary. Advisers: Mrs. Storti, Mr. Cary.

by Michele Turner

FRESHMAN officers have a large class to deal with, and the members range from extremely capable people to rowdy fun-lovers. The officers have the task of directing this diverse group into some constructive endeavors. (Above — standing) Katie Dougherty — president; (kneeling) Teresa Kradel — secretary, Tracy Chase — treasurer, Teresa Gulotta — vice-president. Advisers: Mr. Lucy, Mr. Seavey, Mrs. Fairchild.

Who runs the show for Mount Everett classes? Girls. Almost all girls. Of twenty-four class officer positions, only three went to boys in 1975-76. No need for women's lib in this department.

EIGHTH GRADE chose strong leaders in Alicia Hoag — president, Brian Gage — treasurer, Marjorie Gulotta — secretary, and Jay Lukkarila — vice-president. They have fund-raising enterprises in the planning stages for this year. Advisers: Mr. Durgin and Mrs. Jaouen.

SEVENTH GRADE officers are in the process of learning how — since the seventh is the lowest grade level which involves electing class officers. (At left) Mia MacDonald — president, Maureen White — vice-president, Paula Wilkinson — treasurer, and Patti McDonald — secretary. Advisers: Mr. Gillooly and Mr. Menin.

(THINGS TO DO — STUDENT LEADERSHIP)

BASKETBALL CHEERLEADERS have two squads this year that cheer for both boys and girls. Cheerleaders: Gretchen Langer, Carolyn Williams, Nicole Tolvo — co-captain, Katie Dougherty, Lynn MacDonald — captain, Janice Seiger — co-captain, Suzanne Merola, Tamar Petersen, Shari Boibeaux — captain, Rose Cappadona, Karen Champigny, Linda Farrell, Kathy Wellington. Adviser: Miss Figueiredo.

OCCUPATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION (middle) has held a fund-raising raffle so far this year. Pictured: Sandy Stevens — treasurer, Susan Heath, Terri Zimmerman, Maree Funk, Teresa Guerra — vice-president, LeeAnn Curtiss — secretary, Lisa Wright. Absent: Fawn Ziegler — president. Advisers: Mr. Gauthier and Miss Rickus.

Class Of '75 Presents "Barefoot In The Park"

On April 17, 18, and 19, the juniors and seniors teamed up to present Neil Simon's comedy, Barefoot in the Park — the story of newlyweds Paul and Corie Bratter and their first six days in a new apartment. With assistance from Victor Velasco, who lives on the roof, and Corie's mother, Mrs. Banks, the play turned out to be a huge success, a fitting farewell to Director Ted Simanek, now living in Pennsylvania.

(THINGS TO DO — PROM)

“Anywhere Like Heaven” by Michele Turner

Prom 1975 (headed by co-chairmen Bill Pekrul and myself) was held on the 24th of May, earlier than most of our proms. The week before was extremely hot, but we all sweated it until every last detail was worked out. The Wednesday before the prom was so hot that almost all the murals on the walls fell down. When we saw this, all we could do was stand there with our mouths open. Then the '75 seniors came in to lend a helping hand, which was greatly appreciated. We got rubber cement and plenty of tape and rebuilt the whole scene.

The prom turned out just fine.

Other years the dining was done in the cafeterias and the dancing in the gym, but we had both in the gym. We had previously planned it all out and found we had enough room. We ate the food that our mothers kindly contributed, and we danced to the music of “Brandywine”.

(THINGS TO DO)

Becoming A Yearbook Photographer by E. Heyman

In the Spring of the year, a yearbook photographer comes to the staff with very limited experience. A photographer must first be trained in the mechanics of a camera and then in composition. During his training, he must be shooting usable material. He must deal with variable confrontations and keep good communication between himself and the editor.

A photographer is confronted with varied levels of cooperation from his subjects, ranging from none to complete cooperation. Sandy Dellert (below) who is an example of lowest level of cooperation resorted to outside help to hide her face from the camera. Kim Williams (above) refused to be shot by me, although I tried several times. Chris Smith was a little more willing. I got one shot off (upper right) before she noticed the camera; she then lowered her head and closed her eyes. Then out of desperation, she picked up a ruler to hide her face.

The next level of cooperation is a pyramid (right) built by the photo-journalism class during one of its shooting sessions. This event is staged; however, it is not complete cooperation. There was a tenth person present, but she refused to cap the pyramid. Her reasoning was that it was a windy day and she was wearing a dress.

Almost on the same level of cooperation is the event of one person's creating a situation for the photographer at the expense of another person. Mr. Davis and I were shooting a seventh grade class. Jackie Boibeaux was in the process of blowing a bubble (middle left) when Joann Lemmerman popped it, covering Jackie's face with gum (bottom left).

Next is complete cooperation. On a cold fall day, we had a bomb scare that forced students outside. One class, in order to keep warm, huddled together with Richard Sturchio in the middle. Noticing me with my camera, they asked me to take a picture. I obliged with the picture you see at the upper left.

Sometimes yearbook staff finds itself doing work over and over again. During a lunch period Michele Turner and I got together to take pictures of the Freshman Class officers. Michele explained to me how they were to be set up. I then shot the first three pictures at the right using minor variations. After I was finished shooting, Michele told me I had set them up wrong. I retrieved the class officers and shot them to Michele's specifications (middle right). Mr. Davis found these pictures unsuitable and sent Michael Lewis to reshoot.

Most people don't realize how much effort goes into producing a yearbook. Our adviser, Mr. Davis, and the editors spend many hours preparing the book. To relieve tension, editors Michele Turner and Rick DuVall, who double as photographers, engage in a so-called double shooting session (lower right).

Being a senior is a pretty special thing. Seniors spend most of their time ordering senior portraits, being measured for caps and gowns, and choosing the class song. Seniors are given the special honors of working on the yearbook and the class play.

The senior year is a time for making new friends and getting used to the idea of leaving old ones. In the class of '76, we are very lucky in that the people in the class are really worth getting to know. Our class gets along very well. Everybody in the class pulls together when there is something to be done. I say we really have the spirit of '76.

Softball Rises . . . Baseball Slides by Rick Duvall

It seems only fitting that, in the year of the Equal Rights Amendment and Title 622, the girls should finish with JV and Varsity records of 8-0 and 6-7, respectively, while the boys teams went 5-15 (JV) and 3-18

(V). If you went to the games, however, you would see that our baseball failures came as a result of formidable opposition rather than a lack of effort on our part. As for the girls, all we can do is applaud.

Football Has Best Season Ever

Without a doubt the highlights of this fall's sports scene were those of our mighty Eagles on the football field, finishing with a 5-3-1 record. Not to be overshadowed, the field hockey team also posted a winning record, 8-6. As for the cross country team, we admit that a won-lost record of 1-12 does not win awards, but if you look beyond the statistics you will see a fifth place finish in the Berkshire county meet and a squad full of freshmen and sophomores.

Wrestling And Girls' Basketball Thrill Crowds

During the winter sports season, the crowds at Mount Everett were treated to some extraordinary contests, such as the wrestling victories over Monument Mt. (33-24) and Housatonic Valley (35-24). Our girls dished out a 34-33 defeat to Monument, won 35-30 in overtime against Lenox, but lost a thriller to Drury 49-50.

In addition to a fine spectator season this year, we can probably look forward to a super-season next year — with most of our starters returning. (The boys' team had not gotten a victory before our deadline, but it was not for lack of effort, as any spectator would say.)
